

Site Planning

- Our extensive knowledge of the equipment, the particular shielding they may require and the safety guidelines and legislature, allows us to site your equipment in the best possible way. This maximizes the benefits of an excellent layout, as far as technical specifications are concerned, as well as a functional and patient friendly layout as far as the people around the equipment are concerned.

Training

- Due to the fact this type of equipment requires special training, we, backing our customers in the best possible way, provide training sessions which can be carried out either in North America or locally at the customers site.
- The training is available not only to the service technicians, who will assist with the preventive maintenance and service locally, but the technologists who will be operating the equipment.
- This training includes classroom as well as hands on sessions.
- This training provided by us is mandatory, as it is a factor in customer satisfaction.
